Retina IQ – an expert second look at your retinal images

An optional service your eyecare professional can offer during today's visit.

WHAT IS RETINA IQ?

When your eye doctor takes pictures of the back of your eye (the retina), Retina IQ sends those images for an additional expert review by a retina specialist physician. Your eye doctor receives the report and discusses anything relevant with you.

HOW IT MAY HELP YOU

Added confidence when things look normal

A second expert set of eyes supports reassurance when your images appear healthy.

Clearer next steps

If something is found, the review helps your eye doctor decide confidently whether a referral to a specialist is needed.

A closer look at subtle findings

Some early changes are easy to miss. Expert review prompts a closer look at images that seem normal but may hold subtle observations.

Your doctor stays in charge

Reports go to your eyecare professional — not directly to you — so results are always explained in the context of your overall eye health.

WHAT HAPPENS IF YOU SAY YES

1 Your retinal images from today's visit are submitted securely for expert review.	2 A retina specialist physician reviews the images and sends a report to your eye doctor.	3 Your eye doctor goes over the findings with you and recommends any next steps.

Optional, with a separate fee. Retina IQ is not part of your routine exam and is not billed to insurance. Your eyecare professional will tell you the fee before you decide. Saying no does not change your care today. If you choose Retina IQ, you will be asked to sign a consent and a medical release so your images can be reviewed.
